Multiple clinical challenges face physicians managing patients with inflammatory bowel diseases (IBD), such as those relating to family planning and fertility.

The aim of this webinar is to discuss the management of fertility in patients with IBD, including how the disease course and IBD drugs may affect fertility, as well as optimal strategies for fertility planning and management.

A global survey assessing patients' and physicians' knowledge about fertility has recently been conducted and the results will be shared for the first time with attendees.

Finally, a debate about fertility, using real IBD cases, will be held involving an expert in fertility management in patients with chronic diseases.
